The photo is a composite of the various tribes of the Child Jesus in their various incarnations as dressed up as their various incarnations by their dancing partners.

Palace: Forget Edsa II

'To heal hurts,' GMA wants no celebration today

Loren's loss in election protest is GMA's gain

By Michael Lim Ulloa

READ MALACANANG'S lips: Everyone should forget Edsa II.

Seven years ago today, then Vice President Manlapid-Jarney was present as President, signing the re-act of power from the deposed president. It was a heady moment, such as it is, in the history of the country as a "New Republic."

But there will be no dancing in the streets or parties in the Palace to mark the President's due to present on Jan. 20, 2010.

In keeping with his daughter's wish to "lead the nation of Edsa," Malapig has not ordered any ceremonial activities marking the seventh anniversary of Edsa II. Executive Secretary Eduardo Iñiguez in effect said instead of that happy day should be turned into the day of history.

"Remember, one history again for the President is leading the nation of Edsa," Iñiguez told the bureau. "And we thought no celebrating (it) will be

Why Bobby Fischer loved RP, Pinoys

By Vincent Caloria
Inquirer's Manila Bureau

MANILA CITY—A GENERATION STILL remembers American chess genius Bobby Fischer as a refugee. It is hard to picture this towering, bright playing inside matches in a money club or walking hand in hand with a Filipino woman.

But this generation will have no choice but to look at the 14-year-old Fischer who played before his death on Thursday in Reykjavik, Iceland.

Fischer played twice at the Baguio Country Club and had a romance with a 20-year-old woman from Iloilo named Marilyn Young in Baguio City.

Fil-Am, Asian vote crucial in Nevada

By Nithi A. Rueda

LOS ANGELES—HISPANO-AMERICAN and other Asian-Americans may just deliver the swing vote in the Senate race in Nevada state, the third step for the Democrats in the road to what has become an unprecedented and fiercely fought battle for the party nomination.

"Asian American Pacific Islander (AAPIC) is a key element in this election," said Chris Castro, assistant director of the Asian Pacific American Labor Alliance (APALA) and a board member of the Asian American Pacific Islander Vote (AAPIC).

Signatures for the primary are being in the South of a series of state-wide caucuses in which voters choose their Democratic and Republican candidates running to become their party's

Sto. Niño fest traces image's journey from Mexico to Manila

By Tito G. Serrano
and Beverly T. Nolasco

A FILIPINO PROCESSION IS RE-ENACTING the journey of the image of the Sto. Niño from Mexico to Manila highlight of Tondo residents' celebration of the feast of the Child Jesus patron.

Sponsored by Father Martin Mueoz and the Holy Spirit, the Sto. Niño parade, which is a blend of Filipino and Mexican culture, is led by Father Mueoz, the Roman Catholic priest who arrived in the Philippines with the image of the Sto. Niño, and is followed by a procession of devotees, including those who came to the feast hoping that their prayers, petitions and wishes would be granted.

For devotees of the Sto. Niño, the feast of the Sto. Niño is a yearly rite of celebrating the feast of the Child Jesus, a feast that is a blend of Filipino and Mexican culture.

STA ROSA HOSPITAL and MEDICAL CENTER

Owned and Operated by STA ROSA HOSPITAL SYSTEMS INCORPORATED

It is with great pride and honor to celebrate the inauguration of the Sta. Rosa Hospital and Medical Center, an advanced medical facility. I share the pleasure with the people of Sta. Rosa and the people behind the success of this event.

The inauguration of the Sta. Rosa Hospital and Medical Center represents an outstanding achievement in the medical field, for the company, the people of Sta. Rosa and the country as a whole, as it will be providing comprehensive healthcare for all the people, nationals and expatriates alike, with the best diagnostic and therapeutic services, through the use of the latest medical techniques, equipment and applications.

We continue to challenge ourselves to provide you with only the best in medical services and take this as our commitment to our patients and to the people of Sta. Rosa.

AMADO C. ENRIQUEZ, M.D.
President / CEO

Today a dream has become a reality. The architects, the planners are finished with the construction. They are proud of their works we owe a great deal to them. This hospital now completed and soon will be full of those who need healing. Today it gives me great pleasure to welcome you all to the long awaited, long hoped for opening of this hospital. I firmly believe that Sta. Rosa Hospital and Medical Center will always be a symbol of hope in our community.

FIRST DO NO HARM!

WE, THE PHYSICIANS OF THE PHILIPPINES, SUBSCRIBE TO THE OBJECTIVES OF THE GENERICS ACT OF 1988 (R.A. 6675) AND FULLY SUPPORT INITIATIVES TO LOWER THE COST OF MEDICINES. ABOVE ALL, WE SEEK TO PROMOTE THE SAFETY OF OUR PATIENTS AND PROTECT THEIR TRUST AND CONFIDENCE IN US.

As physicians, we ensure that the medicines we give to our patients are effective and safe. Cheaper Medicines allow them to buy the full course of their treatment. We, however, are aware of the realities of counterfeit and substandard drugs, particularly in many areas in the countries of Asia where, according to the World Health Organization (WHO), more than 30% of the medicines sold can be counterfeit.

While the Generics Act of 1988 aims to rationalize the use of medicines through patient education and provide access to cheaper, effective and safe medicines, it has not been fully implemented because of lack of resources and an inadequate regulatory environment. The problem lies not in the Generics Act, itself, but in the lack of political will to implement it. There is, as a matter of fact, no need to change or amend this Act.

We are deeply concerned, therefore, that a proposed amendment to the existing Generics Act inserted in the House version of the Cheaper Medicines Bill makes otherwise simple medical treatment vulnerable to delays and confusion, and puts patient safety at risk by disallowing physicians from including their recommended brands in their prescriptions which through their long year of experiences have been proven to be effective and safe. Physicians are ethically accountable for the success or failure of their patients' treatment.

Our patients come to us confident that we would prescribe them not only safe and effective medicines, but medicines that are agreeable or palatable to them or their children. There are different responses among patients to medicines with the same generic name; these responses are the subject of the doctor-patient interaction in the clinic. The amendment in the House version, when enforced, would disempower physicians and interfere with their treatment, and intrude into the doctor-patient relationship that has been established over time. With this relationship violated, the physician's role is taken over by the drugstore sales clerk who has neither the knowledge nor the training of the physician, but who now must assume accountability for whatever errors made at the drugstore counter.

In the end, the harm that the amendment can cause cannot be made up for by the gains that cheaper medicines would achieve. We all want better health care for everyone; we all want cheaper medicines for the greatest number of our fellowmen. We can probably think of many ways to achieve our goals, but FIRST, DO NO HARM!

Carmel Martin's enviable hourglass figure has remained consistently sexy in all her years in showbiz. Yet while skeptic eyebrows may be raised about how "Carmel never gained weight anyway," she kindly begs to differ. "I know that some people doubt that I had to go to Marie France to stay slim and sexy. They say, 'Carmel Martin? Oh yes, so you before!' They're right, but I used to be thinner in my younger years. When I got to around 26, I started gaining a bit. When you get older your metabolism slows down. I went from being 118 to 137 lbs. I got fat on my thighs, on my tummy. I tried dieting but not ate more when I got hungry.

As for lips, I didn't want the risk and besides, if you gain weight again the body doesn't look proportioned! With Marie France everything's safe. There's no surgery, no crazy dieting, no pills. I even kept the waistline that I had 20 years ago!"

It seems hard to believe that she ever had a problem with weight, but how Carmel maintained her enviable physique is the result of a disciplined, healthy lifestyle. She doesn't deprive herself of the occasional dessert, but instead the reality is, compared to years ago, it is harder to burn the calories.

This is because your ability to eat all the cake without restraint when you were 35 and not gain a pound slowly disappears when you age. As the years add up, so do the pounds as one's metabolism naturally slows down. And sometimes, even with the proper diet and regular exercise, there are stubborn areas of fat that just don't seem to budget. Born women like Carmel, who have naturally slim bodies when they are young, may also have problems with excess weight in the future.

The good news is there are procedures nowadays that can fix those stubborn areas with safe, effective, non-invasive treatments. Marie France offers a wide array of treatments that are suited for particular weight and inch problems.

So how does one achieve such an enviable figure like Carmel's? Here are a few suggestions:

FOR THOSE ON THE HEAVY SIDE

Try the Fat Mobilization System (FMS). FMS will melt away excess fat so you can lose the excess weight. Safe and helpful.

FOR LOWER ABS

The Physique Inch-Loss will help you firm up and lose those excess inches off your waist. So effective, a 30-minute session is already equivalent to 120 sit-ups!

FOR THAT THICK MID-SECTION

Electro-lipolysis is the solution for you! You'll get rid of those "love handles" and "spare tire" problems for a leaner figure.

slows down. I went from being 118 to 137 lbs. I got fat on my thighs, on my tummy. I tried dieting but not ate more when I got hungry.

As for lips, I didn't want the risk and besides, if you gain weight again the body doesn't look proportioned! With Marie France everything's safe. There's no surgery, no crazy dieting, no pills. I even kept the waistline that I had 20 years ago!"

It seems hard to believe that she ever had a problem with weight, but how Carmel maintained her enviable physique is the result of a disciplined, healthy lifestyle. She doesn't deprive herself of the occasional dessert, but instead the reality is, compared to years ago, it is harder to burn the calories.

This is because your ability to eat all the cake without restraint when you were 35 and not gain a pound slowly disappears when you age. As the years add up, so do the pounds as one's metabolism naturally slows down. And sometimes, even with the proper diet and regular exercise, there are stubborn areas of fat that just don't seem to Start the year right with a new outlook on your health and physical well-being! Lose the excess pounds, remove those unwanted inches. Do it the safe, effective and easy way – without surgery, pills, injections or crazy diets! Marie France offers state-of-the-art, non-surgical, non-invasive treatments to get rid of those stubborn areas of fat in virtually any part of your body that don't seem to budge. Here are some suggestions from Marie France's In-House Physician Dr. Ariel Torres about different problem areas and the specific treatments suited for them:

OVERALL BODY FAT

Overweight to obese people can benefit from the Fat Mobilization System (FMS). This treatment aids in general weight loss and inch loss. It enhances one's metabolism even while at rest! Each FMS session burns as much as 1300 calories in only 25 minutes.

HIPS, HEAVY BOTTOM (PEAR-SHAPED)

The Vela Protocol treatment can help to dissolve and break down stubborn fat that causes cellulite. It is proven effective in improving thigh shape with real and lasting results. The Physique Detoxifier System can also reduce cellulite and prevent the body from storing too much water, thereby improving the leg shape.

approved medical treatment for cellulite reduction, will reduce the hard, dimpled appearance of cellulite.

POST-PREGNANCY POUNDS

The secret to effectively losing postnatal fat is to lose it in 3-4 months after delivery. Start with the Fat Mobilization System, combined with other aforementioned treatments if there are particular problem areas, and for the last few inches you want to lose, UltraShape, the non-surgical alternative to liposuction, which promises an average inch-loss of 3 cm in a single treatment.

being but just to survive. However, they become fat if you don't use them. So your carbohydrates intake will depend on your activities for the day. In general, you need more in the earlier part of your day which is why food, proteins, carbs and cellulite are eaten at breakfast. In essence, you need less of it during the latter part of your day so try to minimize if not totally remove it at night.

3 Eating before you sleep is one always bad for you. When we eat (sleep) at the latter part of our day, usually at night, our body repairs itself. At the same time, our body also replenishes itself with substances used for the day. So it's ok to eat during the latter part of your day even until before sleeping, but concentrate more on repair materials (protein) like lean meat with fruits and vegetables (rich sources of vitamins and minerals).

4 Eat a variety of food. Don't just eat vegetables and fruits but make sure you eat a variety of them. To check, remember what you eat the last week. Did it involve more than 7 types of vegetables and more than 5 types of fruits? If not, then you are not necessarily eating a balanced diet. This is missing out on some of the vitamins and minerals that may be rich in other food. Now in what you are currently used to eating.

5 Consider your cooking methods. In using a variety of food the same goes with meat and how it is cooked. Try to have seafood, poultry, beef and pork but not the lean ones more often and have the chicken's skin only rarely and in small amounts. Try to minimize also those that are greasy and oily in preparation. In essence, eat more steamed fish and less of fried chicken, eggs. Eat more grilled chicken meat and less of fried chicken skin. Eat more broiled beef and less of pork, salmon, mackerels (only once).

STUBBORN LOWER ABS

Electro-lipolysis reduces tummy fat for a flatter and firmer abdomen. It is ideal for treating "love handles" and "spare tire" problems. Physique Inch-Loss will also help tone and firm up sagging areas while strengthening body muscles. A single 15-minute session is already equivalent to 125 sit-ups.

BIGGER UPPER BODY (APPLE-SHAPED)

This type is usually due to increased insulin resistance (or suggest fat that is composed of more fat than water). Fat Mobilization System will help eliminate the excess fat, and Endermologie, the first USFDA

SOME NUTRITIONAL FACTS ACCORDING TO DR. ARIEL TORRES:

1 Eat 3 moderate meals and 2 small snacks per day. Avoid lunches that are low and far between. The purpose of the snack is to avoid being very hungry at your next meal that you tend to binge. But if snacking only makes you more hungry (because, as an appetite), then you can totally remove the snacks.

2 Carbohydrates are good. They are considered energy food that we need everyday not only for work or study where we already, when we realize that there

Fischer's first Pinoy friend: He was very special

By Antonio T. Espinoza Jr.

FLORNOIA, CAMPUSANO—The memory of chess pioneer and former president of the International Chess Federation (Fide), the late Bobby Fischer's original Filipino friend.

They met in New York in the mid-1950s when Fischer was emerging as a chess prodigy. Fischer and Campusano were chess players and Campusano was a chess player in New York and Washington DC while making his living as a teacher.

Fischer was much of an enigma to the first time he met him. He was very young, maybe 13 or 14, Campusano recalled. Campusano said he was not sure if he knew Fischer, but he knew someone pointed him to a young man who was very special but very strange.

It was years later, after Fischer was named World Chess Champion, that Campusano met him again. Campusano met him in person with the 19-year-old Icelandic chess champion, the late Bobby Fischer, for the second time. Fischer, who was then a student, was the first to meet him. They met in New York to watch a match with Fischer who had become the American junior champion at 14. Fischer, in fact, was the first to meet him. Return to Manila

"Years later, Bobby Fischer was very hot," Campusano said. "That made him a very special kind of person."

In 1970, after he had won the world championship from Spassky, Fischer returned to Manila to make the ceremonial first move that opened the first Philippine International Chess tournament. It stayed for more than a month, staying in the New Grove Hotel in Manila. Fischer stayed in the New Grove Hotel in Manila. Fischer stayed in the New Grove Hotel in Manila.

"I was born in 1907 when I was not yet the world champion, but he treated me like one," Campusano said. "Fischer, with a degree of modesty, recalled that the last time he was asked to play in Manila was in October 1961, when Campusano gave up hope of ever bringing Fischer back to another competition."

Philippine Herbal Medicine: A Guide to the Use of Natural Remedies in the Philippines

"HILOT" OR TOUCH THERAPY

From the albularyo's closet and into the 21st century

NIGHT TECHNIQUE: Healing the body with touch.

By Rocco C. Dizon

HILOT, THE AGE-OLD indigenous Filipino massage and healing practice associated with elderly healers and mysticism, is getting a much needed makeover that would put it at par with other healing techniques found in upscale spas and hotels.

The Association of Traditional Healers and Herbalists (ATHH) is the first of its kind in the country to organize a seminar on the use of the 21st-century healing practice. This group of Filipino healers, herbalists and hilot practitioners are being trained to take the age-old "traditional" out of the shadows of local beliefs and into the 21st century.

Uniquely Filipino

If questioned about its own or evolution, hilot practitioners in Thailand and Sweden, among others, would claim to have a hilot practice in their own right. But in the Philippines, it is a unique practice that is uniquely Filipino.

ATHH has been going around the country teaching the benefits of a hilot regimen.

For Athh members, hilot is not just a massage technique, it also has many types of healing practices such as acupuncture, aromatherapy and even Western medicine.

Minister "Boy" Regino, Athh president, explained that hilot is also a philosophy and a culture. Unlike the other types of massage, it is not only a technique, it is a way of life, a representation of the hilot's life.

A good hilot practitioner, he added, would learn the art of allowing his client to suffer from just by looking at him and seeing his energy.

Regino said that a good hilot should be able to see the client's energy, not just the body, but the mind, the soul, and the spirit. He said that a good hilot should be able to see the client's energy, not just the body, but the mind, the soul, and the spirit.

"If these are not in proportion, the client will have health problems," he said. "To correct the imbalance is the hilot's energy that leads to a desired condition, a hilot would have to give the patient a massage.

Regino said that the massage manipulates the body's energy to create the desired condition. "It is not just the body, but the mind, the soul, and the spirit," he said.

The process may sound complex and mystical, but Regino said that hilot is a science. It is a science that manipulates the body's energy to create the desired condition.

Herbal 'cigarette' may help smokers quit

By Rocco C. Dizon

Cebu City

THESE SMOKELESS HERBAL cigarettes smoking like real ones, may help smokers quit the habit.

It has been found that nicotine is addictive. Dr. Lynette B. Dizon, an addiction expert at Pennsylvania State University, said addiction is defined as "the repeated use of a psychoactive drug which is difficult to stop."

Two ingredients of addiction are giving up other things for cigarettes and continued use despite knowledge of harm to oneself and others.

Ramon Tan, founder of Cebu Herbal Health Products Inc., said his herbal cigarettes may be the solution.

Tan is the maker of the herbal cigarette brand. It is a brand of herbal cigarettes that is made in Cebu City and is available nationwide.

He said his products are made from a blend of 10 herbal plants from the Philippines, India, Africa, China and South America.

Nicotine-free

"They have been analyzed and certified by the Philippine National Police Crime Laboratory to be free of nicotine and other addictive substances such as morphine, opium, cocaine and heroin," he added.

Tan began developing the herbal cigarettes in 1998 in consultation with some Filipino and Indian scientists from the University of Missouri.

He also gives free seminars on herbal cigarettes smoking in his Manila City offices. "People can smoke money from smoking herbal cigarettes. There are about 200 herbal plants in the country just waiting to be explored," he said.

THE HERBAL PRODUCTS: A cigarette that may help you quit smoking.

According to Tan, apart from reducing and eliminating addiction to tobacco products, herbal cigarettes can also induce natural sleep and reduce stress and anxiety.

"The herbal cigarettes are not meant to replace tobacco products," he pointed out. "They are to be used only temporarily as a means to give up smoking completely."

Tan himself smoked a heavy cigarette pack a day but after suffering a stroke which is associated with smoking, he decided to quit.

He said he got the idea from stories of nicotine smoking cigarettes out of dried papaya leaves which, according to legend, cured the disease.

"While giving up smoking, I needed something to hold on to during that trying period," he said. "I inhaled an herbal cigarette and found it helpful."

and smoking."

He explained that herbal smoke could eliminate the taste for cigarettes, making it possible to quit smoking. After a few weeks, a smoker should have stopped for good, he said.

Herbal cigarettes also do not contain nicotine, which is addictive. In fact, they are made from a blend of 10 herbal plants from the Philippines, India, Africa, China and South America.

in 15 years or less.

Those smokers first smoking were poor parents, the perception that smoking was "cool," may serve to reduce profits and the influence of parents who smoke.

About 80 percent of young smokers, however, support to quit the habit and even support to ban smoking in public places, the report said.

Smokers of 10 years said the country had the highest rate of female smokers among young adults and adults in the Asia-Pacific region.

Philippine smokers reportedly started to smoking as "a habit, not for enjoying smoking," particularly among and teenagers. A cigarette served as a crutch in a stressful situation, the survey pointed out.

Most female smokers in urban areas think smoking can be an image booster a symbol of glamour, sophistication and power.

Call centers representatives and other jobs also contribute to the rising rates of smoking. High levels of stress, fatigue, loss of appetite and irregular or disturbed sleep encourage smoking.

Health Promotion International, a journal published in association with WHO, and among the country's leading academic journals, notes that the number of smokers is rising.

Israel closes Gaza borders, bombs ministry

JERUSALEM—ISRAEL CLOSED ALL BORDER CROSSINGS with the Gaza Strip on Friday, cutting off at least one aid shipment, and bombed the empty Interior Ministry building at the Palestinian Authority, which was already a ruin from a previous Israeli bombing.

Israel said it was acting today to halt Hamas-run rocket attacks into Israel from Gaza, while Hamas and other Palestinian militants said they had arrested their market day in retaliation against Israel's rocket strike.

In the bombing of the empty ministry building, which is in the crowded al-Qatifi neighborhood of western Gaza City, one woman, Haniya al-Jalal, 32, was killed and at least 40 people were injured by blast and shrapnel, some of them children, according to medical officials at Gaza's al-Shifa hospital. Israel has declared Gaza, run by Hamas, a "hostile entity" and has tried to convince its leaders to stop rocket fire by reducing supplies of gasoline, food and electricity.

The Israeli military has been operating nearly every day inside Gaza, using flamethrowers and direct-fire anti-aircraft missiles. 30 Palestinians have been killed in Gaza since Monday—15 of them on Tuesday and another five on Thursday—and 80 people wounded, according to the emergency medical service in Gaza.

After Tuesday's Hamas rocket fire, Israeli Qatifi market closed the Israeli border town of Erez, along with other Palestinian groups like Hamas, Jihad and Fatah's Al-Aqsa Martyrs Brigades. On Thursday, at least 40 soldiers were killed, half of them landing in Israel, hitting two houses in Sderot and highly wounding four Israeli, with a domesticer treated for shock.

The Friday at Gaza 37 more rockets were fired toward Israel and 10 landed, the Israeli army said, but no one was wounded. Since Tuesday, the army said, 120 Qatifi were launched, in general, about half land in Israel and the remainder in Gaza.

On Friday, in the Jabalya refugee camp, north of Gaza City, Israel fired a rocket at a car killing a member of the Hamas military wing and another man who Israel said were part of a rocket squad, and Israel also bombed a Hamas police facility in central Gaza.

The Israeli decision to close border crossings is another attempt to pressure Hamas in Gaza, and at least one UN aid shipment was not allowed through on Friday.

The Defense Ministry said that all its permits will have to be approved by the senior Hamas official Rami and would be limited to "humanitarian supplies" that are judged to be essential for the well-being of the Gaza Strip. The ministry said it was not clear if the ministry had already received reports in Gaza since the Hamas takeover in June. APT

Report: BA jet's engines failed before landing

LONDON—A BRITISH AIRWAYS jet suffered engine failure before it was forced to make a crash landing at Manchester airport, a preliminary accident report said Friday.

Three kilometers before touchdown, the six-engine British Airways flight 380 from Beijing to London did not respond for a second time to a "crash brake" the report by British Air Accidents Investigation Board said.

"The aircraft speed reduced and the aircraft descended into the grass short of the paved runway surface," the report said.

Three on board and witnesses at the airport said the Boeing 777 landing gear dipped once before the plane came to a halt on its belly. No one was injured, the report said, among the 112 people on board.

The captain of the jet paid tribute to his cockpit crew, saying his engine failed to the cockpit. The aircraft was damaged, but the aircraft was not damaged.

"Flying is about teamwork, and we had a fantastic team on board," says Peter Smith, BA's chief executive. British Airways' London-based operations, before signing out from Senior Pilot Officer John Connolly, who was at the controls, to special crew.

Smith, Connolly and the flight senior flight instructor appeared in the cockpit for the first time since the crash landing. Smith said he was unable to provide further details about the incident until the official inquiry was completed. AP

Illegals biding in plain sight in US

By John Preston

WASHINGTON, D.C.—GISELE is a 26-year-old, a lawyer, a friendly neighbor and a US citizen. She became like this because she is married to an illegal immigrant. Does this look like a fugitive?

Wherever her husband's husband's residence is out of the house, "it makes the risk to my husband," and the woman, who insisted on being identified only by a first name and last name, Mian-Hu.

"It's like, 'Oh, my God, he's not too long,'" she said. "It's not calling a gun."

Over the last year, thousands of illegal immigrants and their families who live here have returned from community life in Washington, a mix of a growing and dropping of illegal immigrants across the country who are clinging to homes and jobs despite the pressure of tougher federal and local law enforcement.

From Illinois to Georgia to Arizona, these families are biding in plain sight, in unmarked buildings by immigration agents and deported. They do their shopping in stores, drive their cars, avoid police and do not take vacations. They stay away from schools, hospitals, doctors' visits and movies at their children's schools, and postpone paid normally family gatherings, or 15th birthday parties. They avoid the police, even for minor traffic violations.

Last year, immigration agents arrested more than 31,000 illegal immigrants, including unauthorized workers and immigrants in 2005. They were sent 275,000 immigrants back to their home countries, a record number.

A survey by the Pew Hispanic Center, a nonpartisan research group in Washington, found in December that 53 percent of Hispanics in the United States worry that they or a loved one could be deported.

Stories circulating in Hispanic immigrant in places like Atlanta and Cincinnati have led to the fear of deportation.

"The walls have really spoken down in a big way," said Douglas S. Mauer, a Pew Hispanic Center researcher who has studied Mexican immigrants for three decades.

Mauer said the "palpable sense of fear and of transience" in immigrant communities has never been more intense than at any other time since the mass deportations of Mexican farm workers in 1954. NYT

Government Warning is dangerous

Russia claims victory as UK puts cultural centers on hold

MOSCOW—RUSSIAN FOREIGN MINISTER Yevgeny Yevgenyev said on Friday expressed satisfaction over the decision of the British government to suspend operations at new cultural centers in Russia, even as the British ambassador said that he hoped the matters would resume after further negotiations.

WOMEN in Russian traditional clothes pose on the stand at Russia's pavilion at the "Green World" (Green Week) international food and agriculture fair in Berlin.

The comments by the two sides, which managed to communicate in contradictory language and yet drew different conclusions of the state of the impasse, suggested that the diplomatic dispute had yet to run its course.

Britain decided Thursday to suspend operations at the offices of the British Council, the government's cultural arm, in St. Petersburg and Moscow, citing human rights pressure from the U.S., which is the dominant sponsor in the U.S.S.R.

The office insisted it would stay in the city the latest result of the decline in relations between Russia and Britain since the first poisoning in 2004 of Alexander V. Litvinenko, a former KGB officer who had moved to Britain and become a bank clerk of Russia's government.

British comments have prompted another Russian KGB officer, Andrei K. Lagovoy, to comment in that case and sought his extradition. Russia has refused. After the extradition was scheduled last year, Lagovoy was scheduled to leave for his extradition.

Russia's Foreign Ministry, which has insisted that the British Council has no permission to operate outside of Moscow, publicly claimed victory in the month's dispute on Friday.

"The British side has finally done what had to be done a long time ago," Mikhail Kuznetsov, the spokesman for the Foreign Ministry said in a statement.

But in an interview on the British Embassy here, the ambassador, Anthony Turner, made clear that Britain did not concede on the matter closed.

Turner said many Russian schools, universities and independent organizations had expressed disapproval to the embassy that the new cultural centers had stopped operations. He said Britain planned to close Russia to allow them to resume work.

Turner also expressed anger over the actions of the FSB, which subpoenaed all of the country's Russian staff members in St. Petersburg and Moscow to question, after after questioning them in FSB offices or by viewing their homes.

"For the Russian, agencies in Britain in the aggressive and British may they have been to us to be right beyond the pale," Turner said. "It looks like in some days or period in Russian history, which we all had hoped was finished."

Bush proposes $145-billion plan to spur economy

WASHINGTON—President Bush called Friday for $145 billion to be used for individuals and businesses that he said would "provide a shot in the arm" to the economy while Congress debates. In a rare show of Washington bipartisanship, pledged to work with his to read a plan quickly. Bush said he had no intention for an economic package only to read it, saying the plan was planned to be "well received based on what" he thought to make a difference in an economy as large and dynamic as ours. "He did not see the world as a place of uncertainty," said a top aide of the White House, reflecting a heightened sense of urgency within the administration and in Capitol Hill about the prospects of a recession as an economy shaken by higher gas prices and uncertainty in the housing and credit markets.

Bird flu kills Indonesia boy, raises death toll to 97

JAKARTA, Indonesia—An Indonesian boy has died of bird flu, bringing the country's death toll in the disease to 97, the health ministry said Saturday. The 8-year-old boy had been born of a Singapore bird flu virus after being treated at the Sultan Hassan Hospital for infectious diseases in the capital, Jakarta, and then taken to an office at the ministry's health center. He and his brother had been treated for a viral infection. Indonesian virus deaths are the first reported deaths of human beings from the disease. The Indonesian health ministry said that it was not clear if the boy had been infected with the virus. Scientists have said that the virus, which has killed at least 100 people in several parts of Indonesia, has spread but not yet been confirmed to be the cause.

IT SEEMED AS IF THE PHILIPPINES were trying to sell ice to Eskimos.

As participants in the first BIMP-EAGA (Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, Philippines East Asian Growth Area) Travel Exchange stand side by side, one wondered why they would want to go to the same place.

Surgeon Chief Minister Peter Chin Hock, who officially opened the two-day travel exchange, pointed out, "the two countries had a lot of similarities in history, a common cultural heritage" and they "shared a feeling of being part of a common Southeast Asian culture."

Indeed, they all looked so much alike. The Philippine tourist brochure was even dressed in a manner identical to that of the BIMP-EAGA members. One from Brunei and the traditional one, as it turned out, were very similar in color and content.

While the Philippines were represented primarily by Mindanao and Palawan, the participants of the regional forum from Brunei, Indonesia and Malaysia said the Philippines' Malay cultural roots spread far beyond the south.

They said the Philippines is very evident in the cultural communities of Brunei and Sarawak. They said the Philippines is very evident in the cultural communities of Brunei and Sarawak. They said the Philippines is very evident in the cultural communities of Brunei and Sarawak.

It was an invitation to remember, to strengthen old links, such as the Philippines' ties with the BIMP-EAGA members, and adapting to different conditions and challenges. The BIMP-EAGA members, while sharing the same beginnings, have developed in different ways, thus they are developing each other something similar and also something new.

During the event, the travel exchange, the Philippines' cultural, historical and natural resources, including old and new, were showcased to the members of the forum.

THE FAMILY MEAL SAVES THE DAY!

Lucky Me! honors this nourishing tradition

The end of the dinner table, the family meal, has been one of its truest after having been allowed to fall to the wayside, but something as important as this won't be just done for long. The nourishing tradition of eating together is making a comeback, and it's saving families around the globe.

Today's rapid-paced, technologically-driven society is fast becoming populated by typically hyperactive, overstimulated families whose day-to-day activities include everything from texting during a meal, to using devices out of sight of the parent, but these shared meals are linked to better nutrition, slower growth development, better ability to adjust and closer ties to our families. As a result, a family meal is an extra during a hectic day - a time to discuss, reconnect, laugh together and support each other.

Studies over the years have shown that the results of studies done on the benefits of the family meal provide impressive proof. And a lot of it has something to do with eating together and helping kids succeed in both school and life.

Eating together will help your family's well-being. A Harvard study published in the Archives of Family Medicine indicated that eating family dinners together most on all days of the week was associated with eating more healthfully. The University of Minnesota conducted a survey that showed frequent family meals are linked to better nutritional intake, and achievement risk for sedentary weight control practices and substance abuse.

Families who eat together "every day" or "at least every day" are said to generally consume higher amounts of nutrients such as calcium, fiber, iron, vitamins B6 and B12, C, E, and potassium, too. Compared to those who "never" or "only sometimes" eat meals together, another study found that children who eat with their families consumed more vegetables, fruits, and fewer snack foods.

Do you want your kids to feel good about themselves and do well in school? Then make sure you share meals with them regularly. Research from the University of Michigan shows that "family dinners are the single most important predictor of children's academic achievement and psychological well-being."

The finding is significant and not hard to understand. It makes sense that shared meals serve as a time for emotional and behavioral reinforcement, and set the stage for family interaction. Parents are much more influential in their kids' lives and the dinner table is an obvious place for them to get regular access to them.

Children who frequently eat meals with their families tend to do better in school. A Yale School of Medicine's Digestive research of high school seniors showed higher academic scores among students who frequently shared meals with their families. While a survey of high-achieving teens showed that those who regularly eat meals with their families and who happen to have their parents live and their prospects for the future.

Dr. Bill Roberts, a professor at the University of Minnesota's Department of Family Social Sciences, found that regular family meals were good for kids' grades, improved their physical well-being, and were a powerful deterrent to drug use and violence. What's unfortunate is that Roberts also found that there has been a 10% decline over three decades in the number of families who say they have dinner together regularly.

And that's exactly why Lucky Me! is rallying for family meals to stage a comeback and for families to get reconnected. Most of the time, all you just want for dinner is VMD to feed into for Family Meals. Here are some tips to help you get started.

RECOGNIZE THE IMPORTANCE OF FAMILY MEALS. Get the family together and discuss the benefits of eating together and make the commitment as a family.

BEAN MEALS. Coordinating schedules can be tough, but it can be done. Start with one meal a week if that's all that's manageable for your family right now. Then increase your family meals from there. Start small, but start at all.

KEEP IT SIMPLE. Sometimes families, trying to implement dinner traditions and to go to the supermarket to the supermarket. Some simple meal ideas can help ease the transition and make it a more enjoyable experience.

BE FLEXIBLE. If dinner's not workable, eat breakfast or lunch together, share a meal with your kid. Figure out what works best in your household.

ENJOY AND CONSIDER. If there's just one way you can sit together, remember that one parent is better than no parent. The point is not how many family members are not going to impact the significance of those members that are still at home.

MAKE IT FUN. Like everyone else, it's fun to talk, share and listen. You can play "Right and Wrong."

When it comes to your dinner, the best part of the day and the worst part of the day.

FOCUS ON THREE TIMES. Make it a rule - no TV or phone calls. Everybody should stay at the table until everyone's finished.

Invite your family to sit around, share life, and eat together - whether it's a take-out food or a home-cooked meal - counts as a family meal. Make this a regular activity for you and your family, and you will reap the benefits long after your meal ends.

Dazzling display of silverware

THE NEW HOME & DINING SHOW room at The Fort recently launched a dazzling display of silverware, table ware, and gifts.

Only the highest quality of silver are accepted by the Home & Dining collection, which is why they only accept sterling silver. Even today, the work of the silversmiths is declared as quality and the preservation of the fine tradition and history of silver.

Home & Dining Silverware is used in the Royal Household in Berlin, prince of the King of Jordan, the first official gift residence in the French Empire, and the House of Doha. It is also used by leading international restaurants and hotels.

The Home Group Inc., its exclusive distribution for the silverware and international markets, has chosen to return and go directly to the customer to better serve its clientele.

The Home Group has two dedicated business units to address their client segment.

The Silver Lifestyle Group takes care of those who are interested in having their own personal set, or who want to replace broken silverware in home direct sales.

The Business Advantage Group serves all of the requirements of hotels, restaurants, institutions and event centers.

Concert scene heats up

By Michele Consuegra

AS MUSIC FANS GET USED TO THE heartening My Chemical Romance concert on Jan. 25 at the First Beneficio Open Field in Taguig, expectations are set for the arrival of two more major foreign acts who are expected to perform one after the other in the next two months.

Next, the 25-year-old pop-rock act from the United States, is performing on Feb. 29 at the dramatic Coliseum, as he followed by the recently-winning US pop-rock band, Maroon 5, on March 5 also at the Big Dome.

But known as the co-creator of the "emo" subculture, the 21-year-old band, My Chemical Romance (MCR) is set to drop their latest album, "The Black Parade" (Epic) Jan. 22, and will arrive at the concert site on the following 30th and 31st of January.

It's a very profile project, aside from helping out Benji, the band's manager and co-writer for the album and for the new recordings of the band's previous albums, the band's manager and co-writer for the album and for the new recordings of the band's previous albums.

Spoken and unique lyrics. The Black Parade will run for approximately 90 minutes up to 100 minutes, as the band's debut album.

Maroon 5 made two the same in 2004, where it debut album, "It's Time" (Jive). They also made two the same in 2004, where it debut album, "It's Time" (Jive).

Several more acts, including 1001 Nights and 1001 Nights, are also set to perform on the same concert.

Platinum in Manila

But the biggest question, if the album is successful, would be the band's future.

Previously identified with "emo" music, Maroon 5 has recently signed an "exclusive" $120 million deal with Jive Records, an event company which owns hundreds of venues in the US and Europe. Under the deal, Maroon 5 would receive $10 million for performance, 10 percent of the album sales, and 10 percent of the band's three new albums, and a $17.5 million advance.

SHOW TIME

Plus, these emerging bands are likely to be the next big thing in the music scene.

This is supported by the fact that US album sales have been down by 25 percent since 2004.

In the Philippines, this is probably the best time for the high school scene.

Since 2004, a local concert promoter, who has made more than $10 million in the past, the country has a population of more than 100 million people, and the quality of concert acts they want to see.

Some 17 foreign acts performed here last year, most of them in major venues.

Risky games some folks play in Sundance

PHILIP CITE USAB—HOLLYWOOD MAY BE hundreds of miles away from the writers' strike, but it's also impacting the upcoming Sundance Film Festival here.

But perhaps this is one instance when the Writers' Guild of America (WGA) strike brings a positive effect. On at least one sector ready to benefit from the two-month strike—the collection of independent films featured, the largest in the U.S. Because of the disruption in film production, other films are expected to beg
